

Abstract

A cab roof member for a work machine is provided, which is provided with improved measures for protecting the operator and insulating noise and has improved economical efficiency and a good design. To this end, the cab roof member comprises a foam made by foaming a plastic material in which a net-like or fabric-like reinforcing material consisting of a high-strength organic fiber or an iron plate is included, so that the operator can be protected from falling objects and the work environment of the operator's cab can be improved in terms of noise insulation and heat insulation.